SUMMER WORKSHOP

Bodega – Enological Metabolism

AAVS Barcelona Summer Workshop

Bodega – Enological Metabolism centres its research on the associations that exist between wine and architecture in order to identify the influences they have on one another.

The workshop will run as two simultaneous experiments: an exploration of the senses, using wine as a raw material, which occurs as 1:1 installations to empirically test and provoke unusual sensorial effects on the body; the other, initiated from a methodological understanding of the winery as a machine, will dissect techniques and technologies involved in enological processes, leading to the speculative design of alternative winery models. Using digitally advanced techniques, the latter explorations will take the form of large-scale maps, models and prototypes.

OPEN EXHIBITION

Bodega – Enological Metabolism

AAVS Barcelona Summer Workshop

Bodega – Enological Metabolism centres its research on the associations that exist between wine and architecture in order to identify the influences they have on one another.

The exhibition will show a compilation of works in wine architecture and design resulting from the research developed at the AA Visiting School Barcelona. A series of selected physical models, drawings and videos will be exhibited in the form of an open exhibition at the ETSAB, Escola Tècnica Superior d'Arquitectura de Barcelona - UPC Barcelona Tech, at "La Peixera" space, from the 9th to the 20th of March 2015. The Opening will take place at "La Peixera", at the ETSAB on Tuesday the 17th of March 2015 at 19.30h, with a brief presentation of the works and the contents for the edition for 2015, being followed by some wine tasting.
